PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

The school year 1976-77 must be recorded in Harry Ainlay's annals as that year during which we examined and re-examined our goals and directions. Academically the Alberta Department of Education checked our achievements against provincial standards; the Edmonton Public School Board observed, surveyed and questioned staff, students and parents as to everyone's perception of our school on a very broad front; within the school, students wrestled with the role their student council organization plays and a staff committee undertook responsibility for a school climate survey. Certainly by coping with the year's questionnaires Harry Ainlay students and staff have deserved honors for patience and good humor. But now that the composite results have been compiled, analysed and debated we have objective proof that the Titan community can be justly proud of what it is doing in all fields of living and learning together.

The year's story of those struggles, successes and failures are all recorded in this, your 1977 Titan Yearbook. Our special thanks to the hard working Yearbook Staff and their every patient advisers for putting together an excellent record of a very full and complete year for all of us. For certain it has not been a dull uneventful period in our lives; hopefully it has provoked closer examination of personal as well as group goals and standards, and set the climate for enthusiastic change and advancement.

M. R. Smeltzer,
Principal

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I have really enjoyed this year. I've done a lot of things I've never done before and met a lot of great new friends. I have also enjoyed working with this year's executive very much.

I know you can benefit a great deal from your high school years. The S.U. executive is a good example of this. None of the members knew what the year was going to be like. And yet, when the pressure and responsibility was applied, they acted quite admirably. We've learned a lot of things about acting and thinking maturely and about real responsibility, not just mowing the lawn every Saturday. It is not easy being on an executive because every year is always different, but I think this executive deserves a great deal of credit because they did a fine job.

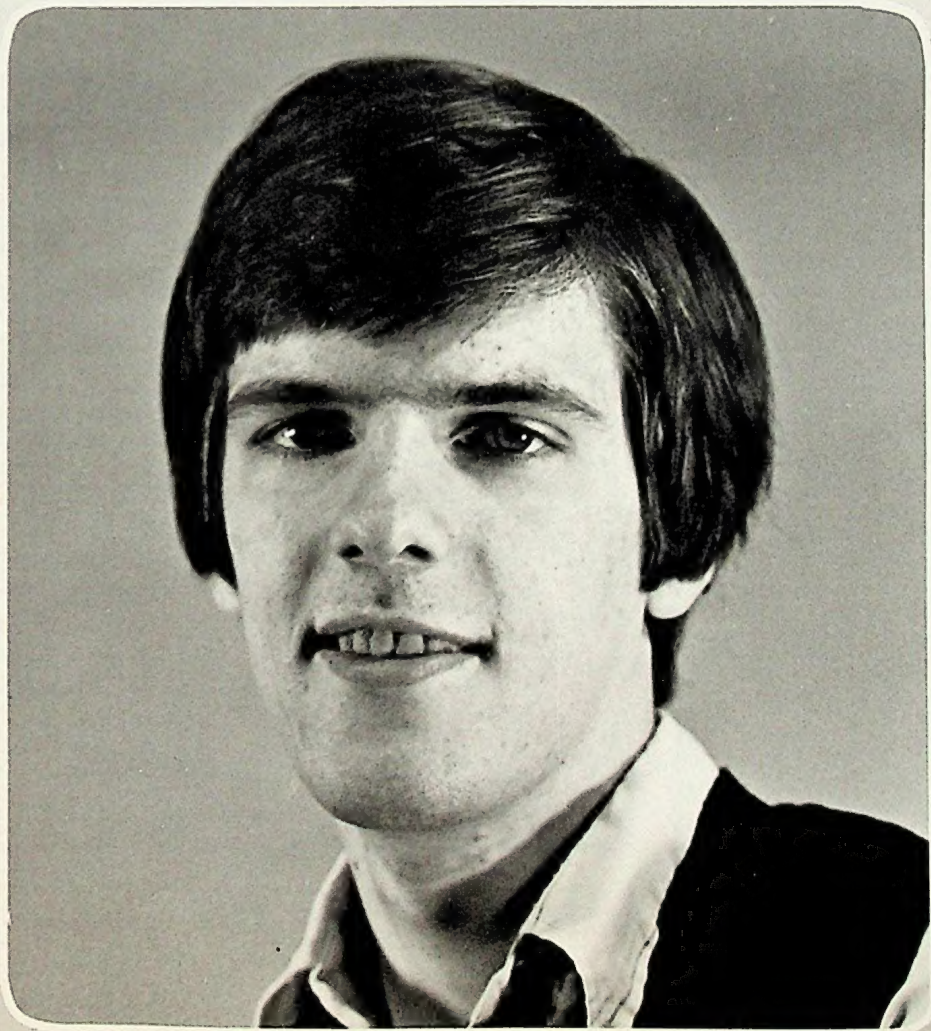

I don't know what will happen in the future. Principals are thinking of abolishing dances. Decreasing interest in school politics, interscholastics and clubs are threatening the whole structure of extracurricular events. Certainly students by now can choose whether or not they want to be a part of any club or activity. But I think that's irrelevant, since these extracurricular activities provide much more than pure fun. If you participate in them, they can help you to mature and be a more productive and responsible individual.

To add one note: there are many teachers that put in many hours of work to provide outstanding programs that compare anywhere in the country. These teachers deserve a great deal of credit.

Finally, think back, it hasn't been a bad year: there have been a lot of great events. I'm sure most of the grads had a fun time in high school and I wish you the best of luck in post-high school education, or in looking for work.

To those coming back next year, I hope you'll put a little into the school because it is one of the finest. If you do you'll have more fun and what you learn in these activities you'll be able to use in the future. I know I've had a lot of fun in high school and many people have helped me along: I appreciate this very much. I hope this won't be the last time I hear of you. Good luck in the future.

Pete Boyson

Mr. Smeltzer has been the principal of Harry Ainlay for the past five years. This year is his last at our school as he is retiring.

Before taking on his present position at Ainlay, Mr. Smeltzer was the principal at Eastglen. In the past, he has worked in schools in Saskatchewan, and in small towns throughout the province of Alberta. At the first school where he was principal, he was required to teach all subjects to thirty one children, Grades 8-12. The main disadvantage to this type of school, he says, is that the teacher is limited in the amount of time he has to spend with individual students. "The kids work on their own the majority of the time. In a big school the teacher can get to one or two subject areas and become a real expert. You can't do that in a one or two room school. In a large school like Ainlay the kids get some of the most talented teachers in the province.

When asked what he had enjoyed about Ainlay, Mr. Smeltzer said: "It's an exciting school in the sense that students can do so many things, and so well in many fields. I've never been in a school that had so much potential. The principal's job is to sit in the background and organize things so that the students can do things and use the opportunities they are given."

The only thing that Mr. Smeltzer said had disappointed him while he was principal at our school was that the problems of vandalism, garbage and smoking in the school had never been completely solved. He is of the opinion that vandalism should be a problem for students and teachers to solve. "It cannot be done by armed guards, patrols, police or adults - it's got to be done as an educational program, and the kids must say 'This is where we draw the line.' The students must turn others in and let the authorities do something about it. The biggest objection to this comes from adults. They're scared of this. They say 'I don't want to get involved'. If students want to make this a better school then they have to do something about it. They can do a great deal, especially the Grade twelves and elevens in providing leadership."

When asked what he saw as possible difficulties for students in future years, Mr. Smeltzer replied: "Big things - lots of changes. The demands of society for young people are changing all the time and it must be confusing for them. The number of courses and schools available will increase. I can't keep up with the changes - it must be extremely hard for students. Society also places continually changing values on young people. Close to 60% of the Grade twelves have jobs. Students even ten years ago didn't do this. These are pressures young people have to live under."

"It will become even more of a problem for kids to decide what they're going to do. I can't see it lessening as we go ahead - the public is cutting down on our services in the counselling area. Instead we should be trying to help students more. Parents try to relate to their children's situations from their own experiences, but they can't. Being a teenager today isn't simple - it's a tough life. I didn't have to work that hard when I went to school. That isn't the way it is today."

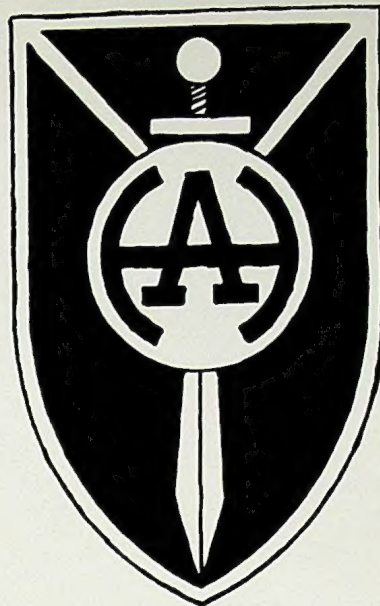

The principal said he feels Ainlay will remain an academically oriented school. He thinks we will continue to grow in Music, Art and Drama areas and that Ainlay will always be a strong contender in sports.

Mr. Smeltzer said he plans to develop some property he owns on a lake and on Vancouver Island upon retiring. He also wants to travel, fish and pan gold. At present, he has no intention of going back to any kind of formal job. The principal expressed the following opinion about Harry Ainlay: "I think the students here are tremendous. I want to see them develop the talents and abilities we've got. I've liked working with young people. Anybody who works with this school is very fortunate indeed."

The students of Harry Ainlay have appreciated Mr. Smeltzer's efforts on their behalf and wish him the best of happiness in his retirement years.

FAREWELL TO MR. SMELTZER

1966 - 1977

FAREWELL TO MRS. PHIPPS

For the past eleven years Mrs. Lee Phipps has been an integral part of Harry Ainlay. Regrettably, we must now say good bye. Since our doors first opened eleven years ago she has been an administrator at Harry Ainlay. Prior to coming to Ainlay she spent ten years as an English teacher and four years as the head of the English department at Jasper Place. She has taught at every level of education and has taught both in Canada and the United States. Mrs. Phipps has her B.A. with an English and a Phys. Ed minor, and also her B.Ed and M. Ed with an English major. She loves working with kids and although she did not find much time to teach at Ainlay, taught an English 23 class last year and creative writing classes in the first five years.

One of the things she enjoys most is watching the learning and growing that goes on each day, be it in the classroom or in our many extracurricular activities. With the exception of a very few she has been to all of Ainlay's games. She feels that we have a great school, one we should be extremely proud of. Mrs. Phipps played an important role in choosing the names that were chosen to represent our school. The traditional, classical names that were picked illustrate the great school that she feels we have.

Ainlay is a very special school, loaded with talent in all areas. Mrs. Phipps says that Ainlay has a strange sense of unity even though we are so diversified. This unity exists among the teachers as well as the students. There are none of the usual barriers existing between the academic, business and technical levels.

One of the things that Mrs. Phipps finds disappointing is the vandalism that goes on in our school. She feels great shame and hurt that the students who perform the acts of vandalism should have to dishonour Harry Ainlay. Another thing that is very disappointing to her is when she sees a student fail to live up to his own potential.

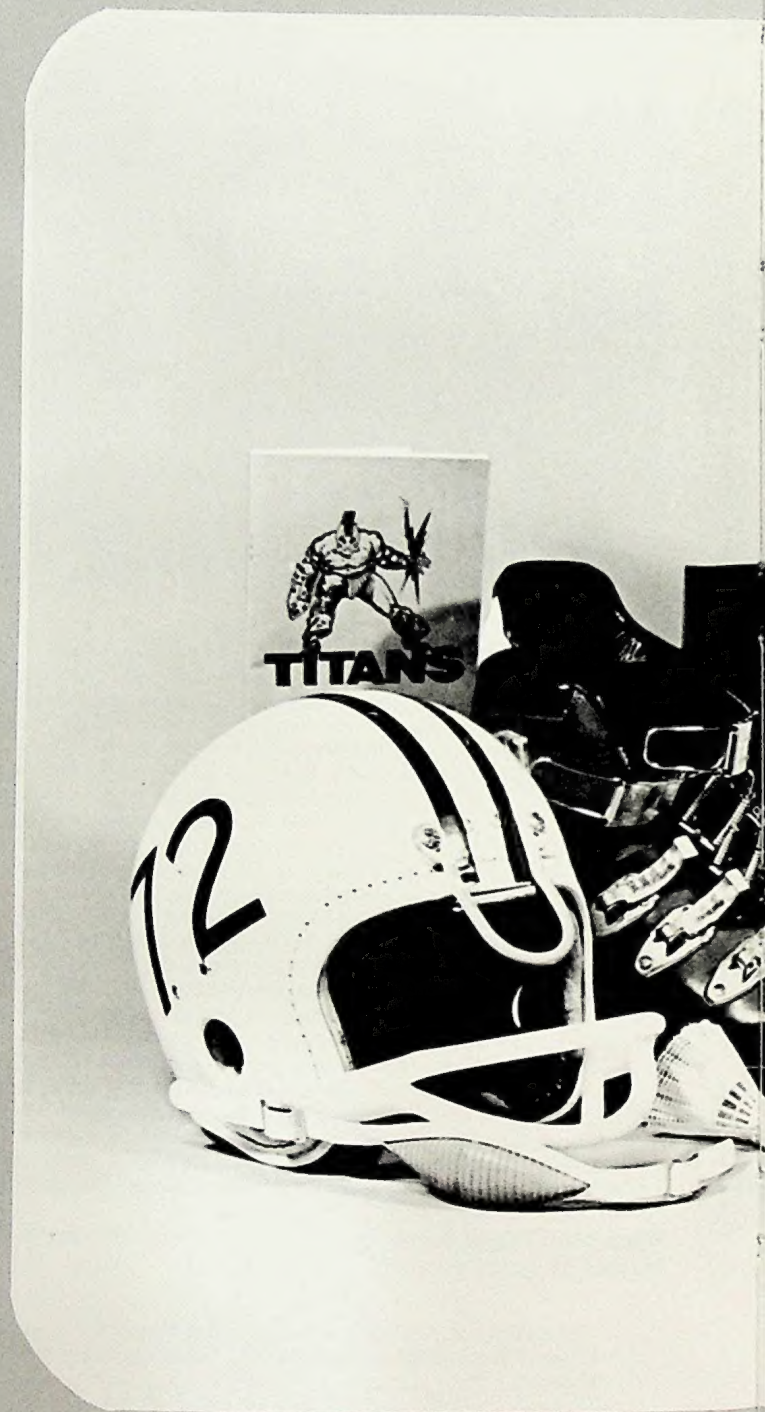

Mrs. Phipps has enjoyed every moment of her time at Ainlay. She says she has never had a bad day in all her time here. Judging by the little momentos scattered around her office, students have enjoyed working with Mrs. Phipps as much as she has enjoyed working with them. Her years at Ainlay have been very rewarding. It gives her a good feeling when she sees her students come through a rough spot in their lives and to know that she has contributed a little bit to their getting through it. Mrs. Phipps has contributed to Harry Ainlay and Harry Ainlay has contributed to her.

When Mrs. Phipps leaves Harry Ainlay she will also leave a part of herself. Perhaps this sentiment can best be phrased by words that Mrs. Phipps has used:

"The fibre of Ainlay has become the fibre of my very being. When I leave Ainlay on June 30, I shall leave a part of my heart."

Good luck, Mrs. Phipps, we'll miss you!

SR. FOOTBALL

The 1976 edition of the Titans was a "TEAM" in every sense of the word. They practiced, partied, talked football, played, and won "together". The coaching staff felt 5 wins and 2 losses was a realistic objective, however, the players returning from the 1975 City champs, refused to believe that they could be beaten. Soon everyone became a believer in the power of positive thinking. Led by returning quarterbacks, Randy Stollery, and Cam Smith, and defensive leaders Matt Dean and Ron Licht, the Titans came from behind to score 3 TD's in the 2nd half of their opening game against J.P. to win 21-18. They continued their climb playing perhaps their best game of the year beating Ross Shep 25-0 in the 2nd game. After a 7-0 season the "TEAM" ravaged J.P. 40-0 in the semi-final game and once again met a Bonnie Doon Lancer team in the City Finals. Leading only 9-8 with 3 minutes to play, an outstanding defensive effort led by Niall Fraser, Matt Dean and Jack Parker snuffed out all B.D. hopes as the Titans hammered home two quick TD's, to lock up their 2nd. consecutive city championship. Ainlay also repeated as the "Most Sportsman like Team" and QB Randy Stollery was named M.V.P. succeeding Ainlay F.B. Skip Kerr.

WRESTLING

COACHES: MR. GALLOP AND MR. THRESHER

The Titans wrestling team had its most successful year in 1976-77. The Titans were anchored by veterans Scott Tate, Dan Bateman, Allan Preston, Peter Daneyko, Mike Jones, and Bob Hughes. The rookies led by Allan Harman, John Lowe, Guy Dow, Tab Cuthill, Steve McKenzie, Bruce "Pinky" Anderson, have ensured that the Titans wrestling team will be Provincial contenders for the next few years. Other members include Rod McMahon, Rob Jones, Peter Frigon, Ralph Reichenbach, Dave Terreta, Cory Russell, Terry Plomp, Rick Renz, Don McDonnell, Mike Larsen, Ted Boomer, Jeff Jones, Darcy Schaffer, Bruce Toma, Bruce Buchanan, Glen Stebner, Don Wagner, Neil McMahon and John Yamamoto.

The High School Championships held at Scona saw Harry Ainlay field a team of 30 wrestlers for the first time. The Titans repeated as City Champions in A Division with Alan Harman, John Lowe, Guy Dow, Dan Bateman, Scott Tate, and Don Wagner winners of their respective divisions. The Titans placed second in B Division with Rod McMahon the lone victor. The Titans, however, won the combined trophy emblematic of wrestling supremacy, for the first time.

During the High School Provincial held at Ainlay, fifteen wrestlers from the Titans represented Edmonton. Of these, Alan Harman, John Lowe, Dan Bateman, and Scott Tate won first place with Guy Dow placing third.

Congratulations to the Titans on a very successful year!

This was a most successful year for our girls' gymnastics team. The team started workouts in October and participated in six (6) city league meets during the months of February, March, and April. They won the Miles F. Palmer Trophy for the Novice Girls City Championship and the Edmonton Sporting Girls' Trophy for the Girls' Gymnastic City Championship. Outstanding gymnasts were:
 Denise Lamothe - winner of the Janet Darwish for the Most Improved Gymnast.
 Cydney Wiebe - All Round Senior Girl City Champion.

PROVINCIAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

Harry Ainlay hosted the Alberta Schools Athletic Association Gymnastics Provincials on Saturday, April 16th. Girls from Calgary, Crowsnest, Jasper, St. Albert, Sherwood Park and Red Deer competed in the meet.

The Senior Girls Championship was won by Calgary. Edmonton Girls including Harry Ainlay's Teresa Sturgess, Sue Rigney, Sharon Fowler, and Joanne Eigner won the Junior Girls' Championship. A strong but unofficial showing was made by our Novice team of Val Carlson, Jeanine Glassford, Joan Dynianiw, Wendy McQuarry, Sharla Wong, Carol Astley, Diane Kelly, Michele Anholt, Karen Smith, Susan Guzak, and Pam Richards.

Congratulations to all the girls who were a part of Harry Ainlay's strongest and largest team.

GYMNASTICS

SWIMMING

The 1976-77 TITAN SWIM TEAM had an outstanding season, winning six of six preliminary meets and qualifying all but one team member for the City Championship Meet. At the Edmonton High Schools City Championships, Harry Ainlay won the Girls' Championships, scoring 1093 points, the Boys' Championships with 1040 points, and the Combined Championship with 2133 points, outstanding second place Ross Sheppard by 726 points.

Harry Ainlay's badminton team had the strength and depth this year to retain the City Championship. We finished first in the league play in our division then won the semi-finals against M. E. Lazerte and the finals against Louis St. Laurent. The strongest male and female players were Scott Campbell and Mary Young. Strong back-up support was given by Mark Kuechler and Dave Goddard for the boys and Corinne Peers and Sandra Bibby for the girls. Most of the players had a turn at completing the team as four girls and four boys were required for each match. Congratulations and thanks are due to all the team but especially to those players who had the interest and courage to go to Calgary for the Provincials. In their II competition Chris Bower and Sandy Tozer won the "B" girls doubles.

SENIOR SOCCER

The soccer experiences this year at Harry Ainlay Composite High School have been full and varied. Many students intent on playing inter-school soccer, registered for the Indoor Senior Mens' League and entered the 4th Division with a team called the Titan Flames. This group enthusiastically competed in Kinsmen Field House and played well enough to enter the play-offs at the seasons end.

Plans were made to travel to England and Scotland from March 25 - April 11. Much effort was expended to raise money to assist each of the 18 athletes and the 3 staff members - such as operating the food concession for the Tri-Province basketball tournament, inter-school hockey games, 2 bottle drives, pen sales and a large raffle. The trip itself was a terrific experience. A chartered bus met the team at Gatwick Airport and was with us throughout the entire trip which covered over 2500 miles. We enjoyed London, even though it was raining and cold. Travelling to Oldham, located just outside Manchester, which was a focal point for us, we passed Henley (regatta site), visited Oxford University (King's College), spent time at Stratford and Warwick Castle. Everyone enjoyed the sightseeing, the shopping (lots of sporting good stores) and the accommodation. The team won and tied games in the Manchester area, travelled on to Edinburgh and met 3 school-boy teams from Bathgate (1-2), Bo'vess (1-4) and Queen's Ferry (4-3). While in Edinburgh we attended a professional game, saw a lot of the fascinating sights of Scotland and met friendly people wherever we travelled.

The climax of the trip was travelling to Charterhouse (south of London) and competing in the National Association of Boys' Club international football festival which involved teams from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, West Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland, England, Ireland, Scotland and Canada (first time represented). Twenty teams competed in our 18 and under division. The Titans played Surrey (2-1), a London team, New Cambridge (0-1), a West German team (0-1) and Denmark (0-5). While at Charterhouse we saw Tottenham Hotspurs play Queen's Park Rangers with 34,000 people in attendance, toured London again and of those people we associated with, the Liverpool lads will long be remembered. Toronto and Edmonton surely looked good on our return.

Shortly thereafter, our high school league began, and our involvement in the league was very good. Our record for the year was 11 wins and 3 losses, scored 46 goals - had 18 against.

The Titans were certainly the best dressed team in the city. While in England, the team individually purchased uniforms currently being worn by Coventry City - 1st Division football.

Hopefully, the soccer experiences have provided several challenges, considerable excitement and established friendships.

Looking back over five years of involvement as the Senior coach, I am proud of the effort and the intent to develop a solid level of soccer skill which has earned Harry Ainlay a respected reputation throughout the city. As I leave, my hope is that the sport will continue to thrive and to attract athletes who will be proud to represent their school in soccer competition.

D. Cragg

SOCCER JUNIOR SOCCER

This year's juniors won 9 out of 12 league games and thus became South Division Champions. They went on to win both of their city championship playoff games and met St. Joseph High School Juniors in the City final. After 110 minutes of play during which Ainlay played with one player short for 70 minutes; the score was tied at one goal each. To resolve the outcome, penalty shots were taken by each team and after six of these, Ainlay was declared the winner only to be disappointed when the referee reversed his decision on the legality of a save made by the Ainlay goalkeeper. Further penalty shots resulted in St. Joe's being declared the winners.

Better luck next year Juniors!

MATH CLUB

Nestled hideously within a dark, stalagmite-infested hallway the Math Club, one of the more grotesque organs of the labyrinthine bureaucracy that is Harry Ainlay's Students' Union. Amazingly, though, there was no Math Club this year. Spurning the concept that since they thought, they therefore were, the club members absolutely refused to exist as such. (Incidentally, this isn't the only one of Descartes' products that was rejected by the group.)

On a lighter note, some people did get their APL every week. These people, though often confused with the Math Club, are definitely not. They are, however, the turkeys in the picture.

By virtue of their refusal to study, the mathematicians of the school carried on the tradition of winning math contests. The youngsters, led by Fred Woslyng, came third province-wide in the Ontario Junior Math Contest. Resident U of A student Keith Fenske, resident valedictorian Glenn Pezani, and resident Fred Popowich, carved yet another niche for the school, as we again proved to have a girm grasp on first place provincially in the Mathematical Association of America contest. Keith came first and Glenn third, with that other guy rounding out the top ten. In the Alberta Mathematics Prize exam, Keith won the Canadian Congress Mathematics Scholarship. Glenn placed 3rd provincially and Sy Ali placed first in the Edmonton district. Keith, Glenn and Sy qualified for the Canadian Mathematical Olympiad. Noschool in the province placed higher than did these three.

SKI CLUB

BIOLOGY CLUB

The Biology Club has enjoyed success as well as failure this year. Gerbils were reproducing at a prolific rate, while the teddy bear hamster breeding stock proved to be incapable of reproducing. The hermit crabs were an interesting addition, and hopefully the marine aquarium will be operating efficiently before the end of the year. One of the interesting pastimes this year was the live trapping of wild mice inside the school - yes, our school is well stocked with these close cousins of our common white mouse. Despite the good times had by all, there were simply not enough members to carry on all of the projects. Hopefully, all of those grade 10 and 11 students who will be here next year will bring their ideas for projects and experiments and will come and join the Biology Club.

ISCF

ISCF's main aim is to help people to get to know Jesus Christ, and to understand how he relates to their lives. Included in this was a lot of fun and some great fellowship. Open meetings were held every Tuesday at lunch. During these meetings movies were held, speakers brought in and some great discussions were got into.

the ISCF was very active in the school this year but hopes to be even more so next year.

I've been told that a little hard work never hurt anyone, it's a lot of work that sometime can be painful!

I'd like to thank some of the hard-working yearbook people who helped make this yearbook a success, (I hope). The photographers, I'm positive, were the finest we've ever had and our layout staff (although occasionally lacking in great numbers) helped put the TITAN TRADITION at the top as far as new imaginative styles go.

Mostly, I'd like to thank Mr. Hignell for the assistance, support and time he has given to help make this yearbook possible.

In closing, I would like to say that this year has been an interesting and challenging experience and I hope you, the reader, enjoy the final result.

GRAD COUNCIL

AWARDS BOARD

HOUSE LEAGUE

Harry Ainlay's Houseleague Council is the most active intermural council in the city. Providing activities that are not necessarily for the "jocks", the council's main goal is participation. The opening activity which welcomes the grade tens to Ainlay is the Great Race, in which a number of ridiculous obstacles must be conquered. Other well attended activities were coed badminton - with over teams participating, inertube waterpolo - with teachers drowning out the students, and rounders - with participation determining the winning house, rather than skill. Besides the major activities, the one day minor activities such as the football queendance, penny war, tricycle drag, splash dive contest and the track and field meet aroused much student body interest.

Our thanks to Mr. Thresher for devoting all his noon hours towards houseleague activities.

THE KID NEXT DOOR

"There's a kid next door who's kind of been bothering me lately - not to say he's like a pest or a bully or nothing like that, it's just that I worry about him a lot. He's a nice guy, you know, but he's really sort of . . . jumpy. Moody! - that's it. He's awfully moody, and I know why. Or, rather, I THINK I do! I couldn't KNOW it, 'cause, well, I'm not him, so I THINK I know why. Understand?

"Yeah, well, anyhow, this guy I'm talking about's got a problem, an', well, he's askin' me to help, so I say yeah. I mean, I like him as a friend, and all, so, well.

"Anyhow, I think he's a got a demented family. He probably loves them, he thinks, but jeez. Anyway. You know, I know for a fact that the kid really tries hard to get along with his mom and dad - but I don't think they even let him! And he's either 'too loud' or 'lazy', or 'can't you do anything for yourself?' Am I making sense?

"Good. Anyhow, this guy next door, oh! Yeah, you're right, he's my age. Thirteen, yeah. Anyhow, this kid I'm talking about hates it all. You know, he hates going home at night. It's almost so bad that he makes excuses to stay late after school, and his parents only get more mad at him because he's late! A vicious circle, you know.

"Anyhow, Mom screams a lot. . . Oh, jeez, I'm sorry. I mean his mother . . . You know how carried away I get . . . Anyhow, she screams. I mean, she really screams! She yells at this guy 'till his eyes turn red, and then she screams, "You're too old to cry!" It's 'the garbage hasn't been taken out' or 'your room isn't clean' or 'the dishes aren't done'. It's this, that or the other thing from his mother. Poor guy, right?

"Yeah, right. But it's not as bad with his mom as it is with this guy's dad! Cause this guy never even TALKS to his own dad! His dad won't let him! He tells me. . . this guy next door, who's my friend, . . . anyhow, he tells me that he couldn't complain if all of his friends' dads weren't so nice, taking their sons on fishing trips and football games . . . He says it wouldn't be so bad.

"Jeez, look at this nail. You'd think I'd know when to stop chewing! Ha, ha.
"Yeah, well, anyhow . . . Sorry about getting off the topic a little, here . . . anyhow, you see, this guy next door hears his mom and dad arguing real loud one night . . . after he's gone to bed, you know . . . and his dad . . . well, he tells me his dad kind of sounded drunk . . . And then his mom started screaming. . .
"And she can really scream . . ."
"And yelling. And then . . . then she started to cry. . . he heard it all, you know. His dad screaming, too, by now, and this friend of mine. . . starts to cry, too. . . and jeez. . . it was scary . . . for him, of course. I wasn't there . . .
"And he says it's hard to remember . . . cause he tried to forget it . . .
"His mom, though, she runs down the stairs, and out the front door. . . and she's crying, and he heard her, and even saw her drive away, cause he got up . . . And his dad comes into my friend's room, cause I guess he was crying. . . and his dad looks so helpless. . . my friend wanted to stop crying so bad!
"His dad, though, remembers something, cause he looked panicky, all of a sudden, and my friend's dad says, 'Quiet!'
"But my friend can't. . . "The other kids are sleeping!' he says to my friend, whispering. And then, even quieter - 'They don't have to hear.'
"My friend thinks his older sister heard, anyhow . . ."
"His dad asked him nicely the next morning not to tell anyone what happened . . . Mom has gone on a trip for a while'
"But my friend told me, anyhow."

HATE

Hate is seething blackness, hot tears, dark flame,
words of stone.

Hate is steel spikes,
broken glass, dark clouds,
decay.

Hate is silent screaming,
red thoughts, wilting flowers,
stagnant pools.

Hate is watching eyes,
exploding suns, sweating hands,
stench.

Hate is jagged teeth,
burning bodies, staring silence,
crystal eyes.

Hate is roaring mountains,
black ice, hot blades,
alone.

Dave Shynkar, 11
Recipient of Honourable
Mention Award in 1977
Olympus Poetry Contest.

This is for you, because I always wanted to say thank you . . .
and I couldn't, because I want you to know that it's ok,
what you're doing to me.
I don't mind.
I'm just lonely. . .
And so I thought I'd say well
thank you . . .
for giving me your heart
once.
Here -
now you may have it back.
sort of.
- I only kept a small piece-
-you'll never know it's missing - maybe SHE will though . . . but it doesn't matter, does it?
Hey -
I'll take good care of it-honest. I'll put it away safely and quietly, and no one will ever know ever,
just you and me . . .
if we remember.
Come on - it's the last secret we'll share!

a feeling a word
a song
I knew what life was all along.

a thought a flicker
a touch a feel
A life too short is a life too real.

a hope
a prayer
a love
a breath
Still cannot stall the doom of death.

Mention Award in 1977

IT IS SOMETHING
 ALL HUMANITY LOVES
 AND NEEDS- ESSENTIAL TO OUR MORAL AND SPIRITUAL WELL-BEING. WE'VE ENJOYED IT
 THROUGHOUT OUR HISTORY, AND HAVE LAUDED THOSE WHO GIVE IT TO US IN GREAT GLORY...TRULY
 ONE OF OUR BIGGEST PLEASURES.
 WHAT IS IT? WHY, IT'S ENTERTAINMENT!!

IT IS THE ESSENCE OF LEISURE!!
 SOMETHING
 EVERYONE WANTS!

WHAT AN AUTHOR LEAVES BEHIND

I am memories
And what good am I
if not relived?

I am a song
And what good am I
if not sung?

I am a poem, I am a story, I am a book!
And tell me, what good am I
if you should forget I exist?

For I am forever! (if you will only permit)

Please! I'm not asking you to carry me wherever you go.
I'm not asking you to dwell on me
- because I won't dwell on you.
You can even leave me alone for awhile
- and please do.
All I'm asking of you
is to remember that I'm here when you need me,
Or even just that I'm here.
You can sing me when you like,
Read me, tell me to others, talk to me,
Remember me.

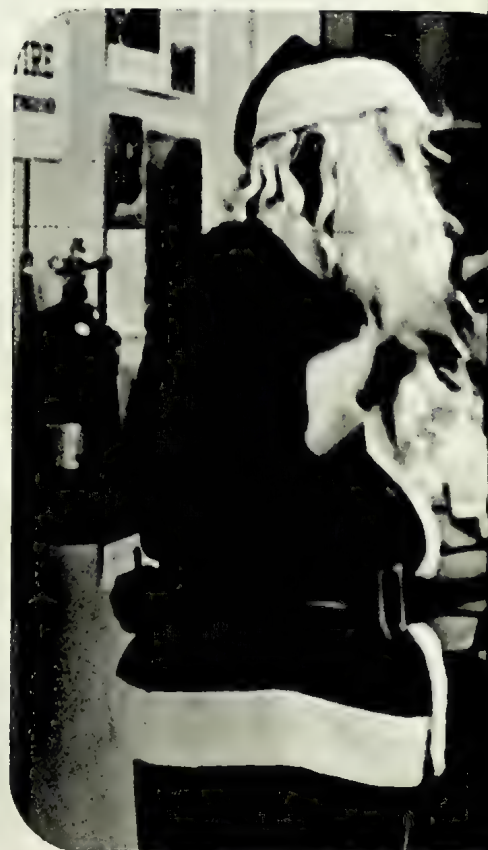

And then -
We will be forever . . .
. . . you and I.

AU REVOIR

Loneliness forseen
when the best of my friends depart
they may glance at the past from time to time
BUT the fog will form rising strong then blind
and their memories of Ainlay will be lost in time
I shall remain walking the halls running to class writing those tests enjoying my life
But they will be missing
those great grade 12's
And I pray they recall the fun and games
the jokes we shared
All friendships gained.

COMMENCEMENT

I have been chosen to give the class history, but before I do, I would like to recognize our parents. Without our parents, without their love and encouragement over the years, there would be no class history.

Fellow graduates, parents, teachers, members of the platform party. This group of young adults numbering close to seven hundred represents the largest graduating class ever in the eleven-year history of Harry Ainlay Composite High School. It is well known that the success of an institution, such as Harry Ainlay, is achieved by the efforts of each student. The graduating class of 1977 has deemed itself worthy of many accomplishments in the past three years.

In the beginning, there were hundreds of us moving around the school with little maps to locate our teachers and rooms. Several students sat in on a new class and after an hour or so of "DNA and Polypeptides," eventually realized that that wasn't English 10. Grade 10 was a year for meeting new friends and teachers. A year that induced insecurity and fascination.

We started out during Frosh Week where several unfortunate students were "volunteered" to participate in the King and Queen Contest. While the newcomers were making fools out of themselves, the older and more sophisticated 11's and 12's were observed to be in fits of laughter. Contestants were judged by their standings in many events such as: The three-legged race, scavenger hunt, and fashion show where hairy legs protruded from flowery dresses.

With time came maturity, and a feeling for the life of the school. We all learned to suffer, and I mean suffer, through Mr. Lantz's jokes, Mr. Sprysak's singing, and even Mr. Webb's quotations from Mao-Tse-Tung. But we all received a beam of radiant sunshine whenever Mr. Klapstein strolled down the hallways . . . without his hat on.

I'm sure we will all remember our teachers. Ignoring their habit of assigning pages and pages of homework on a Friday afternoon, accompanied by an evil grin, we have learned that teachers are more than leaders in the classroom, they have given countless hours of their time for student activities and we should thank them for that.

Remember the hours of homework you didn't do? Have you ever realized how interesting a T.V. program becomes when you have homework to do? Sitting down to watch Popcorn Playhouse while your unfinished term paper lies unopened on your desk. Remember how student attendance dropped 50% on Friday afternoons. Do you remember the morning announcements you haven't heard yet. The Administrators decided to run them at the end of class to make you hear them, so now, instead of arriving late and missing them, you leave early . . . and miss them!

Our third and final year has been a memorable one. Just a short time after the annual, but unofficial, froshing of Grade 10's, we won our second Football City Championship in two years. We then proceeded to take the City Championships in wrestling, badminton, swimming and gymnastics.

Our interests included more than interschool sports. Many clubs were well supported. Ski trips to Alberta and British Columbia were certainly enjoyed, perhaps too much. Our school newspaper has become a major operation this year. The "Titanic" is now read by the majority of students. Of course, Harry Ainlay's Music Department has developed one of Edmonton's finest programs.

As we approached the time of graduation, we continued to follow tradition. Grad Dance Lessons were well attended by girls but the guys either were too scared or had already mastered the art. We'll find out tomorrow night. Of course, our friend, Mr. Bateman, came back to do his routine . . .

MARSHA, MARSHA
JOHN, JOHN
MARSHA, MARSHA
JOHN, JOHN

Mr. "B" has created a tradition that turns the stomach of every Grade 12, every year.

In a short time, we will leave this school, taking with us our memories. Many of our friends and fellow students will be left behind or enter into an institution or occupation different from our own. Those familiar faces we are so used to seeing every day will fade away. Take a moment to stop and think about the good times you had at Ainlay, about all the friends you've known, and be hopeful that the future will bring the same happiness you felt at Ainlay.

Greg Harris

GREG HARRIS CLASS HISTORIAN

GLENN PEZZANI VALEDICTORIAN

Tonight we celebrate the end of our high school days. Unquestionably we are all very happy to see the completion of our secondary education become a reality. We have a right to feel proud and successful. It wasn't easy for any of us.

At times we might have expressed resentment at having had to attend school, blatantly professing to having learned practically nothing of value and to having wasted our time. This is a mistake. True, the school system isn't perfect, or in fact anywhere near perfect, but who, being at all reasonable, can expect it to be. Definitely, the advantages and merits of our schools today greatly outweigh the weaknesses. For one not to be aware of the unique value of our educational system is to be guilty of very shallow thinking.

Perhaps it is also the fact that many of the advantages of our school system are very subtle and hard to recognize. All of us have no doubt experienced frustration, at one time or another, when questioning the relevance of some of the things we were required to know. The truth is, for many of us, these concepts and ideas in themselves are worthless. We must realize however, that it is the abstract thinking processes that we were forced to use, that are particularly invaluable. Our world of the seventies is far too complex to permit one to reduce the problems and questions confronting man to a simple equation.

We have been provided with an opportunity to become proficient and knowledgeable in many fields, both scholastically and socially. Life becomes much more satisfying as one becomes versatile and capable. If one seeks only to excel in a single interest, he may become a very narrow and limited person. Interests and values may change as time passes on, and a person may thus lose everything in the transition and become bitter. A person who possesses numerous and varied abilities is a powerful person, a person capable of helping a faltering friend or failing soul. Assisting a fellow man is a wonderful thing, partly because in doing so, one leaves a part of himself with that person, allowing a deeper understanding to exist between each other.

We have learned to prepare. To always be prepared. In order to succeed we must be able to face life's jousts with courage and optimism, requiring us to be ready for anything that might happen. Only then can we act with the confidence and conviction which is so essential.

We have discovered that just as no two snowflakes are the same, neither are people. Our individualism is what makes us special, to ourselves as well as others. We should not expect people to change in order to adapt to our morals or standards nor should we long to be like another person. Everyone of us has his place; perhaps some of us will have to search for it - to seek out our destiny.

Above all, we must recognize the fact that we have not made these past few years alone. We are indebted to our parents for their help and encouragement. Their patience and perseverance has to a large degree been responsible for our success. Sometimes we must stop and look at the situation through their eyes for us to understand.

Nor should we forget our teachers. Theirs is not an easy job, and seldom are their efforts acknowledged. Their patience, as well as their guidance and dedication have helped us to mature and prepare for what lies ahead.

Let's look forward to accepting the challenge that lies before us. Let's not kid ourselves. It won't be easy. But neither were the past few years. We all made it. We all will make it.

- Cuba's Alberto Juantorena won the 400 and 800 meter races.

THIS WAS THE YEAR WHEN...

Many people have contributed pieces to this jig-saw called the 1977 TITAN TRADITION, but those who struck it out while others faded have to be commended for this final result: Bob Cartney, who assumed the editorship when the year was half over but the book barely started; Cindy Feduniw, the hardest working layout person and Grade X student on staff; Barb (ara) Brand, whose ever-smiling face and frequent trips to McDonalds saved our spirits and stomachs, as well as putting in countless hours. My thanks and congratulations to all the photographers, especially Mike Baaten and George Harman who put in many dark hours developing and printing pictures.

Our typing this year was saved by the Office Secretaries, who at the drop of a hat produced our copy for us. In particular, I must thank Anne Marie Sieber who was our unofficial yearbook secretary and did a fantastic job in typing. Thanks to Reid Felske, our Yearbook Representative, who put up with out inexperience and missed deadlines and guided us to this conclusion.

And a last thank you to all the find students whom I have worked with this year. Their personalities, characteristics, and idiosyncracies have formed many memories which will be recalled in the future.
